

UN Discusses Plan for Talks to Disarm

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)

Groggy from three weeks of ornatory by Nikita Khrushchev and 22 other chiefs of state and government, the U.N. General Assembly cleared its decks today for work on a crowded agenda headed up by rival East-West disarmament plans.

The world body must deal with 80 questions including four separate items on disarmament, the top issue of the session.

rivaling the arms proposal, Premier Khrushchev put before the assembly, the United States, Britain and Italy put in a resolution Friday night calling for resumption of East-West disarmament negotiations.

The competing plan slated to go before the United Nations top political committee next week, have three key differences.

The Soviet resolution calls for quick conclusion of a treaty for general and complete disarmament. The Western proposal would have agreement first on arms measures "capable of early implementation."

2. Khrushchev makes disarmament negotiations conditional on a revamping of the U.N. secretariat, with a three-member board of Communist, Western and Neutral nations replacing Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld. The Western plan calls for no such change.

3. The Western plan calls for more specific control requirements. It specifies that controls should guarantee that armaments are reduced as agreed and remain reduced. The Soviet proposal calls only for control "from beginning to end" of the progressive stages of disarmament.

Both plans called for an international control organization under the United Nations, but the Soviets want to include all the 99 nations in the world body on a super-panel.

The political committee will also take up three other disarmament items. They deal with suspension of nuclear tests, prevention of a wider dissemination of nuclear weapons and the report of the Disarmament Commission.

The assembly has to separate African items on its record agenda. With 25 African nations now in the United Nations, that question is expected to get a thorough airing.

Heading up the African list are the explosive question of Algeria's six-year struggle for independence, the U.S. five-point program for African development and the Soviet Union's demand for an end to all colonialism.

Two cold war items—the situation in Hungary since the Soviets smashed the 1956 revolt and charges of Red Chinese oppression in Tibet—go directly to the assembly floor where they are sure to touch off bitter East-West wrangles.

Value of the Handicapped is Cited

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—William P. McCahill of Washington, executive secretary of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, Thursday told the third Arkansas Conference for the Handicapped that employers' refusal to hire the handicapped is leaving a source of economic strength untapped and is damaging national security.

Such an attitude, he said, is the greatest barrier the group faces in its work for the rehabilitation of the handicapped.

"We do not say the handicapped should be hired because they are handicapped," he said, "but we do say that the handicapped should be given the equality of opportunity that every other person enjoys."

McCahill said the attitude of most employers is that a person with any kind of handicap is unfit for work.

He told the group to urge employers only to be objective in their consideration of handicapped applicants.

THEY ARE DIVIDED—Symbolically slashed in two, this mosaic in Hamburg, West Germany, reminds all Germans that their homeland is still a house divided. The work is newly installed as Berlin once more becomes a pressure point in the cold war.

Union Seeks to Organize Rifle Plant

ROGERS, Ark. (AP) — Three

unions will seek the right to represent some 700 workers of the Daisy Rifle Company in a National Labor Relations Board election Oct. 28.

Employees of the air rifle factory will have four choices. They may choose the Machinists, the Teamsters or an independent union as their collective bargaining agency; or they can vote against all three.

Cass S. Hough, president of the union, said the company has a "club here this week that his company's employees had one of the highest wage structures in the area plus "excellent fringe benefits."

Hough was emphatic when he said his company would never let a "union run our business."

Twice before efforts by unions to organize the Daisy plant have failed. Recently, an independent union was formed by a group of employees.

If none of the four alternatives receives a majority in the Oct. 28 election, a runoff between the highest in the vote will be held later.

UDC Officers Are Elected

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—The Arkansas division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy closed its annual three day convention Thursday after electing Mrs. A. C. Cannaway of Little Rock president.

Representatives from 14 Arkansas chapters voted to meet next year in Little Rock.

Other officers elected Thursday included: Mrs. Loy D. England, Magnolia, first vice president; Mrs. Norwood Phillips, Hot Springs, second vice president; Mrs. Jack Edwards, El Dorado, third vice president; Miss Mary Cannon, Little Rock treasurer and Mrs. John E. Golden of Texarkana recording secretary.

Mt. Ida Murder Case Resumes

MOUNT IDA, Ark. (AP)—Testimony continues in Montgomery Circuit Court today in the first degree murder trial of Bud Stoval, who contended in an opening day session Thursday that he shot Ed Hulsey, 45, to death last May 24 in self defense.

The state is seeking the death penalty for Stoval, contending he chased Hulsey through woods and a shallow river before killing him following an argument over ownership of a condenser for a whiskey still.

A statement made by Stoval after he was arrested, which was introduced into the trial Thursday, quoted Stoval as saying he shot Hulsey only after Hulsey had fired five shots at him.

Edith Piaz to Sing

PARIS (AP)—Edith Piaz is getting ready to sing again in public. The popular, husky-voiced chanteuse has been operated on several times in the past two years for a liver ailment.

Miss Piaz said her first appearance would be on Dec. 29 in Paris.

Laos to Stand Firm on Policy

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Premier

Prince Souvanna Phouma of Laos told the United States today he will not change his neutralist policy and if the United States does not like it, he will have to seek assistance elsewhere.

The first Soviet ambassador to Laos, Alexander Novikov, arrived in Vientiane today. He said he would say something about aid as soon as he presents his credentials to King Savang Vathanavong.

The Soviet Union is expected to offer ruble credits to Souvanna's hard-pressed government in an effort to gain a foothold in this strategic, hitherto pro-American kingdom.

Indiana Needs Employment Says Solon

IN MICHIGAN With Kennedy

(AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy whistle-stopped in beautiful Indian summer weather across southern Michigan today, talking unemployment and which party can provide jobs.

"The State of Michigan never has recovered from the 1958 recession," he said at Jackson. "It still has seven per cent unemployed and the auto plants are working full time now. What will it be like next January, February and March?"

The Democratic presidential nominee said he knew the Republican party was founded in Jackson 104 years ago and that it was successful then "because it met the needs of the times" on the issue of slavery.

"But in this year, 1960, it is the Democratic party which is the vital party and can meet the issues of our times," he declared.

The Kennedy special train drew crowds of several thousands at each of its first morning stops. At Albion, in strong Republican territory, there were many placards for his Republican presidential rival, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and some boos for the Democratic contender.

Kennedy took a crack at Nixon's statement in their televised debate that President Eisenhower had restored dignity to the presidency after the Truman years and that a president should be a man the children of America can look up to.

"I have to be careful about what I say from now on in view of the vice president's statements," the senator remarked at Ann Arbor. "There may be children here."

Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's press secretary, said the Democratic candidate received more than the usual number of telegrams praising his performance in the debate.

Man Killed in Wreck at Gentry

BENTONVILLE, Ark. (AP) — W. J. Bardo, 53, of near Gentry, was killed and two other persons injured today when a car skidded on wet pavement and crashed sideways into a tree at Cave Springs.

Junice Bardo, 17, daughter of Bardo, and Melvin Dieter, 17, of near Gentry, were hospitalized here.

Cuba Rep. to UN Turns on Castro

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of Cuba's delegates to the United Nations turned against Prime Minister Fidel Castro today almost at the exact hour the United States was unleashing an attack on him in the United Nations.

The U.N. delegate, Miss Teresa Casuso, quit her post with the charge that Castro is making Cuba into a police state. She said Castro "has to be put with everybody."

The United States filed with the United Nations a 9,000-word reply to Castro's 4½-hour speech last month to the General Assembly. The State Department depicted Castro as a tyrant who is seeking to provoke an incident over the Guantanamo naval base. It said Castro is welcoming Communist intervention and trying to undermine the inter-American system of collective security and progress.

These developments came a day after Castro's firing squads had shot 13 men, including an American, on charges of attempting to overthrow his regime.

These executions led to violence in Miami, Fla., less than an hour by plane from Havana. Angry Cubans swarmed through the office of Castro's consul general, Abelardo Leon Blanco, gave him a beating and smashed furniture. Today Castro told the consul to return home. Outside a Miami cafe where Castro sympathizers often gather there was a shooting leaving two men wounded.

In New York police announced the arrest of a man sought in the slaying of a Venezuelan girl during a clash which occurred when Castro visited the United Nations. The FBI has described the man, Francisco Molina, as the leader of a group that intimidated Cubans opposing Castro.

At home, Castro's regime moved toward complete state control of basic industries. It nationalized 392 firms including banks and sugar mills owned by Cubans, as a followup to a takeover of many U.S. investments. Virtually all sugar mills, turning out the mainstay of the Cuban economy, now are under state control in much the same way that factories are controlled by the state in Communist countries.

Castro to Seize All Industries

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's regime took a huge step today toward complete state control of Cuba's basic industries by nationalizing 392 firms, including all Cuban banks and 105 sugar mills.

This was the first nationalization of Cuban-owned property. The government previously had nationalized the bulk of U.S. investments in this country, including 36 sugar mills and banks, estimated to be worth a total of a billion dollars.

The new nationalization decree was signed by the prime minister and President Osvaldo Dorticos. It included 50 textile factories, 8 railways, 11 movie chains, 13 department stores, 16 rice mills, 6 distilleries and 11 coffee companies. Many had been taken at least partially under government control previously.

Strike Fails to Halt A-Plant Production

By ED MILLER

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — A sprawling gaseous diffusion plant—Oak Ridge's largest atomic energy facility—continued to operate today despite a strike by some 1,000 union workers.

Supervisory personnel relieved workers at their jobs as members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (OCAW). Local 9-228, posted pickets around the plant at midnight.

The walkout came after negotiations failed on the union's demands for a 20-cent hourly wage boost and despite an appeal from the Atomic Energy Commission for a delay for further negotiations.

E. F. Hitchcock, a federal mediator, said no definite talks had been scheduled for today but negotiations would continue "until this thing is settled."

It was the first strike at the plant since 1954, when supervisory personnel also stepped in and kept the plant's output flowing.

The plant, one of three installations here, produces, among other things, uranium 235, the principal explosive for atomic bombs.

Workers at the other two plants here are not affected by the strike, union officials said. They are represented by the Atomic Trades and Labor Council which accepted, subject to member approval, a 9-cent hourly increase Wednesday.

The plants are operated for the AEC by the Union Carbide Nuclear Co.

At a similar plant at Paducah, Ky., whose workers also are represented by the OCAW, negotiations continued. A union spokesman said no immediate strike threat existed.

The negotiations were conducted under a wage-reopening clause in the present contract. The Oak Ridge and Paducah plants, along with a plant at Portsmouth, Ohio, which had no strike threat, produce the nation's entire supply of isotopes from uranium.

The current hourly pay scale at the plant here ranges from $2 for common labor to $3.50 for skilled technicians.

The government's refusal to grant John Bates, local union president, an extension of a three-year leave of absence was reported as one of the major stumbling blocks to the negotiations.

Mediators Trying to End Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal mediators make another try today to end the strike against the General Electric Co. by the International Union of Electrical Workers.

No progress was reported Thursday as mediators shuffled between the two sides.

Rumors continued to circulate that the 8,700-member Schenectady, N.Y., Local 801, the IUE's largest, was disillusioned with the walkout and would go back to work next week.

After a noisy IUE meeting Thursday, conflicting reports came from IUE president James B. Carey and Local 801 business agent Leo Jandreau.

Carey came out of the session to tell newsmen the Schenectady situation was solid.

Jandreau was noncommittal. Asked if his local was going back to work, he replied: "not at the present time."

The strike started Oct. 2, but Local 801 didn't join it until Oct. 6.

At Schenectady Thursday night, a company spokesman said the mediators had delivered to Carey in New York 25 copies of a GE letter offering to continue all provisions of the expired contract except the escalator clause if the union would end the strike and continue negotiations without setting another strike deadline.

Jandreau has been pictured as ready to accept a continuation of the present GE contract—except for a cost-of-living escalator clause—while negotiations continue.

Freedom of Press Is More Important Than Ever as U. S. Observes Newspaper Week

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Many special weeks are observed throughout our nation, but it is assumed the person setting type for this article will be especially interested in what today marks—the beginning of National Newspaper Week.

The purpose of such a week is to demonstrate to the American reading public their right to know as exemplified by Federal and State Constitutions. One of the many rights that we as Americans enjoy is that privilege known as Freedom of the Press.

How long has there been such a thing as a newspaper in our world? The earliest equivalent of the newspaper was a series of announcements called "Acta Diurna," posted during the Roman Empire days. In China there had been similar announcements in the 7th century, but the Roman ones apparently were more "westernized."

The first printed paper was published in Germany in 1609, while the first English newspaper wasn't established until 1622. Then, as now, it was the sensational that took the limelight, and two murder trials were a primary part of the attention-getting news.

In the reign of Queen Elizabeth I the news writer was well established. The early writings took the form of news letters and were distributed by mail. The first English journalist of national importance was Daniel Defoe, probably best known today for having written "Robinson Crusoe."

The evolution of newspapers in the United States technically started with James Pory, though he, John Chamberlain, and Thomas Locke were all professional writers of newsletters.

After America's independence from Britain, papers became the political organs. Two of the most important ones of that day were edited by Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson, respectively. This became known as the era of black journalism.

Banners on newspapers in our city have since carried such names as "The Spirit of Hope," "The Hope Gazette," and the "Hope Journal." "The Star of Hope" was again the name used by a local paper until the purchase by Alex. H. Washburn in 1920. From then until the present it has been the "Hope Star."

The fight between the two factions eventually got so bitter that President Washington requested his two secretaries to put a stop to their bickering in the interest of the struggling republic. Politics so prompted the publication of papers that the number increased from 37 in 1776 to 350 in 1810.

The American who really put the news in newspapers was University inventor of the telegraph, who stretched a wire directly from news center to the newspapers. Arkansas was the scene of the first newspaper published west of the Mississippi River, when the "Arkansas Gazette" was established at Fort Arkansas in 1810.

One of the greatest influences in American journalism was James Gordon Bennett. With $800, two wooden chairs, and an old dry-goods box he began the "New York Herald," and at his death it had become one of the papers in the history of American journalism. His son of the same name continued in his father's footsteps and was the one who sent Stanley to Africa to find Livingstone. In many ways the younger Bennett established the yardstick by which news is measured today.

Many advancements have played a big part in the modern newspaper, from typewriters to linotype, but the fact remains that it is people who make the news and it is that same human factor that brings it to the reader. One of the first businesses established in Hope was the newspaper. It was "The Star of Hope" and was owned by Col. Anson W. Hobson, who brought his printing office from Camden in 1873.

Banners on newspapers in our city have since carried such names as "The Spirit of Hope," "The Hope Gazette," and the "Hope Journal." "The Star of Hope" was again the name used by a local paper until the purchase by Alex. H. Washburn in 1920. From then until the present it has been the "Hope Star."

The anti-submarine force in the Pacific, commanded by Vice Adm. John S. Thach, consists of several hunter-killer groups—a carrier and four destroyers.

Alerted frequently to investigate sightings, the force fans across the ocean, playing a type of "blind man's bluff" with the unidentified object.

The planes, equipped with electronic devices including sonar that can be dunked into the ocean, fly low over the water. A helicopter assists them.

The destroyers fan out in front of the carrier, working closely with the aircraft.

The charges were filed after FBI agents reported they frustrated an attempt to bomb a building at Philander Smith College for Negroes here. They said they picked up Miller and Parks at an automobile parked near the building and arrested Adams at his home about the same time.

U.S. Attorney Osro Cobb announced Thursday he was having the federal charges dismissed in favor of state court prosecution. Prosecutor Frank Holt said he hadn't asked that the federal charges be dropped and hadn't been given any evidence in the case. He said that when the evidence was turned over to him, he would present the matter to the Pulaski County Grand Jury.

Police Leave Home of Lumumba

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Congolese soldiers holding Patrice Lumumba a prisoner in his residence were withdrawn today and the deposed premier went back to politicking.

There was no immediate explanation for the end of the four-day blockade that the Congo army's commander, Col. Joseph Mobutu, said would be maintained indefinitely. Mobutu had said the soldiers would arrest Lumumba if he dared leave his house.

Mobutu was at his own villa in Camp Leopold II celebrating his 30th birthday and not immediately available for explanations.

The Congolese army commander told newsmen Thursday he had no intention of fighting with the United Nations over the fate of Lumumba.

He thus overrode his own provisional government which had served an ultimatum on Tuesday that they would order Congolese soldiers to attack U.N. soldiers protecting Lumumba unless he was handed over for arrest. The U.N. Command rejected the ultimatum.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Premier Khrushchev's mistakes at this bewildering session of the U.N. General Assembly have been nothing short of awesome.

His performance may even cause him trouble when he gets back to Moscow. He's had to face the music before for past mistakes, although he has managed to stay on top.

Leaving tonight, Khrushchev is nursing painful wounds sustained in the verbal battles which culminated Wednesday night in a spectacle that left delegates stunned and bewildered.

Khrushchev may still consider that he made some gains. But the consensus at the United Nations is that Soviet policy has had a costly setback, and that Khrushchev himself contributed liberally to it.

A diplomatic struggle is not like a football game. There is no clear-cut score to distinguish winner from loser. Khrushchev's success or failure depends in many instances on the point of view.

But one of his main purposes in coming to New York was to make a strong bid for the goodwill and respect of African nations and of other uncommitted countries. He blew his chance finally Wednesday night with his shoe-waving shouting performance which led to the climactic adjournment of the wildest session in U.N. history.

One African representative of those Khrushchev was trying most to impress with his professed intention to end all colonialism, sardonically commented that he was glad to soak up atmosphere in "such an august assemblage."

No matter how the vote goes today on Khrushchev's proposal, he still is likely to be the loser. There is a good chance the proposal will carry—and be the first purely Soviet proposal to do so in the 15 years of the United Nations. But that will be in spite of the Russians. Africans and other former colonial peoples are unlikely to vote against a proposal to free others. But the force of the Soviet propaganda accompanying the proposal has been lost.

Assembly session, Khrushchev had suffered a severe setback in Africa's chaotic Congo. He could have learned from it that fledgling nations lean on the United Nations for protection. Khrushchev also apparently wanted to promote an approach to disarmament on Kremlin terms, with the United Nations as a forum for inspiring doubt in American good faith. He probably wanted to assert a dictatorial Soviet voice in shaping the world's future. He wanted to talk over the heads of leaders to people around the world. He also may have wanted to impress the Red Chinese and others who disagree with him that the Kremlin way of advancing the cause of communism is best and safest.

How did he fare? He took a beating when he failed to convince the non-communist world that it should get rid of the secretary-general's office. He lost in failing to stop discussion of Communist suppression in Hungary and Tibet. He lost in failing to send the disarmament issue to the full Assembly for debate. On that one he was hurting badly. He had staked much on an impressive vote for the Soviet point of view, even if it might lose. It lost overwhelmingly.

Fifth Body Is Taken From River

POCAHONTAS, Ark. (AP) — The body of Bobby Joe Tollett, 16, of Huntington, Ind., the last of five persons who drowned Tuesday night when an automobile plunged into the Current River, was recovered Thursday afternoon. The bodies of the other four, A. L. Donaldson Sr., 68, of Glenwood, Ark., and his three small granddaughters, residents of Huntington, were found huddled in the submerged car Tuesday night a few hours after the accident. Tollett's body was found about 200 yards downstream from the point where the car fell into the river from an open bridge seven miles north of here on Highway 67. Donaldson was bringing the little girls to Arkansas for a visit with their grandmother.

Ceiling Falls, 2 Die at Texarkana

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — The ceiling of a nice house undergoing remodeling collapsed Thursday, killing two workmen and injuring two others.

Dead are Ray Gill, 24, of Texarkana, Tex., who was supervising the remodeling, and R. C. Braggs, 36, Negro, of Texarkana, Ark.

Injured were J. W. Forte, 36, of Texarkana, Ark., and Homer Hendrix, 29, of Texarkana, Tex., both Negroes.

Neither was believed in critical condition. Cause of the collapse was not known. The ice house was owned by an adjoining 7-11 grocery store.

Authorities said Forte and Hendrix crawled from the 40-by-60 foot structure. Rescuers worked 45 minutes before freeing the bodies of Gill and Braggs.

Annex Hearing at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A hearing on a lawsuit contesting the proposed annexation of 17.9 square miles to Little Rock opened today in Pulaski Circuit Court.

William S. Rooker, a motel owner, and T. C. Dixon, who operates a bus line, are contesting the annexation, which has been approved by Little Rock voters and County Judge Arch Campbell.

Another protest, filed by 60 property owners, was withdrawn at the start of today's hearing.

Chancellor Jim Merritt of McGehee is hearing the case on an exchange of circuits with Circuit Judge Guy Amsler, who disqualified himself.

Readers Find Happiness Each In Their Own Way

Dear Helen:
After reading your column about the family who wanted their daughter to wipe the slate clean, I felt maybe my story could help relieve their minds.

Last year I had a baby in a religious home for unwed mothers. Luckily I had the wonderful parents who stood by me; who gave me the decision of keeping the baby or not. I had adoption papers drawn up but changed my mind after the baby's birth. I don't regret my decision. I have (to me) wiped the slate clean and started a new life with my baby, a wonderful, healthy, happy little girl.

Although only 16, I've found that taking on the responsibility of a baby is not difficult if you mind is made up that your baby is so important that you're willing to go any lengths to keep it.

I have a job paying $12 a week with room and board. With this money for my future, it's going to get me through business school. Believe me $12 isn't much but it can buy the things you need if you spend it wisely.

My decision as to the future of my child and myself was based upon these five questions:

What did I really want down deep?
What were my views about adoption?

Was I willing to take the responsibility of a baby into my hands, and if so, was I willing to work hard for her support, welfare and happiness?

Was I willing to spend time to give her the love, attention and understanding that every baby needs?

After a lot of thought I placed my decision into the hands of God, and to this day have never felt regret.

I know that no mother can be happy if these things do not lie strong in her heart. Only then will she know the right way to turn.

Miss Happy:
Dear Miss Happy: You have done what few can—face yourself. Only those who not only know ourselves but think things through will ever achieve the true happiness which comes with inner peace.

Dear Helen:
A boy I liked very much gave me several rides home from school but he is going steady with another girl. I like him very much but I don't want him while he is still attached to someone else. Am I doing right by trying to drop out of the picture? He has told me that he wants to date me and me alone. Should I keep seeing him? He has told me that he would work it out himself.

A. G.
Dear G. G.: Stop seeing the boy until he works this situation out for himself. If he wants to, he will.

Go on with your own life. Study, improve yourself. Be somebody and the nicest boy in the world will be camping on your doorstep.

Dear Helen:
I think your advice to teenagers is excellent and so diplomatically given. I am sure you are helping them more than you or they realize. I am a senior citizen and the youths I see today, especially the girls, are so nonchalant they don't even speak or answer if spoken to, even in

CAP Searching for Lost Plane

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Civil Air Patrol units launched an extensive four-state search today for a private airplane with four men aboard which landed safely at its destination hours earlier.

The plane, piloted by George Hickey of Vero Beach, Fla., left the Jackson, Miss., airport for Gunnison, Colo., with a stop planned at Oklahoma City.

When the plane was not checked in at Oklahoma City CAP planes fanned out over Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

The search was called off when it was learned the men had arrived at Gunnison last night.

At Little Rock, Col. Phil Back, public relations officer for the Arkansas CAP, said two planes from De Queen and one from Magnolia had joined the search.

Two planes from Hot Springs were ready to take to the air when word came the plane had landed safely.

Trial of Pickets Slated Next Week

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Trial for four pickets arrested in connection with a strike at the Jonesboro General Electric Co. plant last week have been reset for next Tuesday.

The strike began Oct. 2 as part of a nationwide G-E walkout over a wage dispute.

Kenneth Stagg, was charged with resisting arrest, William B. Walker, was charged with obstructing traffic, Date Williams was charged with obstructing traffic and interfering with police in the performance of his duty, and Clyde D. Grafton was charged with interfering with an officer. All are from Jonesboro.

Local 747 of the International Union of Electrical Workers has protested the arrests, charging that the pickets' civil liberties have been abused by a few members of the police force.

The trials were scheduled in Municipal Court Thursday, but were postponed on agreement of attorneys. All four men are free on $1,000 bond.

OUTBOARDS MUSCLED NOW SEEK REFINEMENT. By WM. TAYLORMCKEOWN Editor, Popular Boating (Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Quality rather than quantity of horsepower—that is the story for next year's outboard motors.

A preview of new lines shows improved carburation, stepped up generating systems, simplified gear shifts, attempts to cut gas consumption, increased sound proofing and even dashboard warning lights in case of overheating.

Cows have been restyled and high styled, of course, but it takes more than looks these days to sell an engine.

The end of the race for more power may be in sight. Today's potent outboard package is considered by some to produce more push than many small boats can take.

There is also the matter of weight and portability. The latest big outboards have so many horses that they no longer can be easily lifted on and off a boat by one manpower. And to get their remarkable small size to big strength ratio, the motors must spin rapidly and consume considerable gas.

Outboard makers apparently have decided that since they can't outmuscle the heavier inboard engines, they'll now try to outrefine them.

This year, the big four of outboard production, Evinrude, Johnson, Mercury and Scott may have a newcomer—West Bend.

An older member of the field, this outfit jumps into the tug-of-war of the horsepower race with an 80 h.p. model for 1961 that will tie with Mercury for top power position. Next comes Scott with a 75.2 horse announcement, followed by Johnson and Evinrude at 75.

Gale will top at 60.

Announced as a seagoing counterpart to the sleek foreign sports cars will be a new 30 h.p. motor—the Bundy—imported from Italy in time for boating next summer.

Some boatmen are motormen without a boat, and for them there are less massive motors that can truly be carried in the trunk of a car. For the fisherman who wants to drive down and rent a boat, there are smart little one, three, six, 10 and 20 h.p. models that weigh under 100 pounds and can be carried around.

Filling the gap between are the 25 to 50 h.p. models—the working horses that pull water skiers and push fishermen and cruising families along the world's waterways.

Next year, it appears from the preview models we've tried out so far, a boatman should have no trouble in picking the outboard power plant to best match boat and requirements.

Chapter XXIV

In April, 1944, the strange behavior of homing pigeons in Rome, the Notting-Hill beachhead nearby, and in fact the whole Italian Campaign were not of really first importance to planning the war in London and Washington. Still, for reasons of inter-service pride, the entire morning of April 17th was consumed for General "Jake" Nolan of U. S. Intelligence, Lt. General George Morris, commanding the Signal Corps of the United States Army, and a half-dozen assistants of each, they sat in "Georgie" Morris's impressive office in the Pentagon among vacuum water jugs, currents of conditioned air, ash trays, mahogany pictures of General Morris's wife and three daughters (strangely similar to the picture of a wife and three daughters in Oberst Kraft's office in Rome).

"It seems," began Morris, "that our boys in Italy are fighting one another more than they are the Krauts."

"No more test flights would be held," Harrington's man in Rome with the code name of Paolo would be told to lie low until the capture of the city. Then the pigeons could be inspected and a verdict reached. For the sake of peace, General Morris's man, General Reilly, at Fifth Army would accept Colonel Harrington's apology, and indeed, subsequently apologize himself, thus preserving the protocol of rank.

"Thank you, George," Nolan rose as he addressed General Morris — "and I'm as sorry as you are we cannot run our tests now. Things are fouled up in Rome; mass execution of hostages; vastly increased counter-intelligence activities by the Germans; and now the assassination of one of Himmmler's jet officers, a Major Hostrup, apparently by Resistance Forces. It was Colonel Harrington's judgment, agreed to by my Italian desk here in Washington, and by me, that our Plum Mission in Rome go off the air, suspend activities, and hole up for a week or two."

When Paolo and Tonino deciphered Harrington's message ordering them to suspend all activities, they left the air and hole up, they and Rossini and Luchino made a show of being impatient, but each in his own way believed. The tension and fear of waiting for an indefinitely postponed Allied capture of Rome had taken a high toll of nerves — and of courage.

Paolo and Tonino buried the radio, and coding equipment in its damp-proof case in a wood lot near Mont'Alto's farm. The four of them stayed largely confined to the house, with the exception of single members of the group making forays every two or three days to get food or for the gossip of what was happening in the outside world, for which their appetite was equally great. Like shut-ins — prisoners and invalids — they chewed their mental finger-nails, counted the days and hours, and imagined things even worse than they were.

"I'll have to go to Rome tomorrow," Luchino said to the others late one evening. "I can't understand why Police hasn't sent me some sort of word."

"If anything were wrong," Rossini replied, "certainly his father would have let you know somehow."

A little before noon the next day Paolo spotted Partenopa coming back across the fields from the lane. For two hours or more one or another of them had been nervously going to the window every few moments to look for her. "She's bringing the vegetables back!" said Paolo.

All four of them started for the front door.

"Please, let me talk to her," said Luchino. "You go sit down. You look so jumpy I'm afraid she'll forget everything if we all speak at once." The others turned back as Luchino opened the door.

"Mamma mia! She's all right, but they arrested them. The little boy, too, Roma!"

Luchino took her gently by the shoulders and pushed her into a seat.

"Who was arrested Partenopa?" "Signor Ciccio and his little son. Mamma mia! The poor fellow! They arrested him and his little boy. And carted them off to prison — and took the pigeons, too."

"When did this happen?" asked Luchino.

"His little girl who was in the Vigolo told me — I never go up; I wait in the street as you told me to — she said they took them off yesterday morning. But I asked the seamaker at the corner, and he said it was yesterday afternoon. Who knows?"

With a composure he did not feel Luchino smiled at Partenopa. "Thank you. It was a long, hard morning. Go put the stuff away in the kitchen and then go out to your cottage and lie down awhile. Don't worry about Romolo and his boy. They will be all right."

They remained silent until she had left the room.

"I've got to get him out," said Luchino almost in a whisper. "Not only for what he's done for us, but because in a sense he's become a member of my family. And it was I who allowed him to involve his little boy in these things. If it had only happened before we exchanged those two — Wolff and Schenkel!"

"You might go to Monsignor O'Toole," Paolo suggested.

"I'm not sure he's too well disposed toward us after Saverio Mont'Alto ran over him rough-shod. And the pigeons — they may have shot him already if they realized those are homing pigeons," Luchino replied.

Fairview Fights Off Late Hope Rally and Bobcats Go Down by 14 to 7

By VINCE FOSTER
Hope Star Sports Writer

Last night at Hammons Stadium, the Hope Bobcats were outscored 14-7 by the Fairview Cardinals of Camden in a 4AA bill. This was the first time in five years Fairview has beaten Hope. The Bobcats just couldn't get started until the latter part of the third quarter, but by that time Fairview already had 14 points.

The first score came in the second quarter as HB Shelton Payne clomped over from the two. Tackle Clifton Broadnax kicked the extra point, and the score then and at the end of the half was Fairview 7, Hope 0.

Before the game the Cardinal drill team performed, and they were followed at the half by the Fairview band. The Hope band also marched and played very well at the half.

Early in the third period, Cardinal QB Jimmie Bush passed complete 22 yards to Payne, who scampered over for the score. At this time Broadnax kicked his 7th P.A.T. of the year, and then Fairview led 14-0. Late in that same period, Bobcat guard Chuck Beggs covered a Cardinal fumble on the Fairview 25, which set up the only Bobcat score. FB Joe Matt Herndon made this touchdown, his fifth of the year, from the four.

Joe Duke, seeing action at this time only because of a leg injury, kicked the extra point to close the Bobcat scoring in this game.

Twice in the final period, the big Cats drove inside the Cardinal 15 but were held right there by the tough Fairview defense on both occasions.

Herndon was the big rusher for Hope with 94 yards, and he was followed by Ward and Arnett with 48 and 44 yards respectively. Bobcat defensive standouts included Beggs, Gilliam, Roberts, and Churchwell. Beggs and Roberts got their second sack each for making the most tackles.

HB Stanley Watson gained 91 yards for the Cardinals, and Payne followed with 66. Broadnax led the Fairview line.

"Our boys just weren't ready," commented Coach Pierce.

Flight of Gold From U. S. Dangerous

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Corporate profits and confidence in the value of the dollar would seem to be the most unlikely of bedmates.

But so intimately do the economies of nations live together these days that even the profit squeeze in this land is something to be considered in the cross pull of world trade competition and in striking a balance between world currencies. Or in any dangerous flight of gold from the U. S. Treasury.

Balance of international payments may seem a vague proposition to most Americans. But the value of their dollar and the effect that a change in world confidence in it might have on its value is something they do understand. And many fear, if only confusedly, over the loss of gold in the last three years.

Almost everyone agrees that the health of the U. S. Treasury plays a vital part in the world's confidence in the health of the dollar.

That's where corporate profits come in. If they hold as high as the Treasury hopes, it can end this fiscal year next June 30 with a surplus. If business profits — and tax collections from them — slip badly, it couldn't.

People don't worry about their deposits in a bank when they know the banker can lay his hands on the money to back them. The United States has been the world's banker since World War II. A healthy fiscal situation here breeds confidence in Uncle Sam as a world banker, even when his balance of payments is in a cycle of deficit — so long as the downswing doesn't last too long.

Our balance of payment deficits in the last three years means that the total outflow of dollars abroad — for imports, for foreign aid, for overseas business investments, for travel, for military establishments — has exceeded the money we took in by selling our exports, by profits on foreign investments, by selling services.

As a result of the buildup of dollars in foreign hands we have $5 billion less in gold now than 10 years ago and the short-term dollar assets held by foreign governments and individuals and international banking institutions tops our roughly $18.5 billion of gold.

It is possible — but supremely unlikely — that gold would be demanded for all of the dollar assets held by others.

But if confidence in the value of dollar assets slips, enough gold could be demanded to be embarrassing.

Whosoever Will may come to Church Whosoever Will may come to God...

"AM I RICH"

...this thoughtful man reflects. Men call him a captain of industry but that may not make him successful. He has no fear of the future as far as the comforts of life go but, never-the-less, he stands in pensive thought. Has he given companionship to his children? Has he taken them to the right places? How often has he sat with his family in church? Would they call him a good Father, a successful husband? Has he shared in building a good community and civic institutions?

Any man is much richer who does these things. But who is the truly rich man? What is the distinguishable mark? If he should die this night, who would miss him? Would neighbors be made poorer by his going? Would any hungry folk go without food because his hand was stayed? Perhaps he is asking the ancient question... am I rich with God? All of us should ponder, "just what will I carry into His presence when I go?" What are the qualities which make a rich person? That man is truly rich who leaves a poorer world by his going. Then come with me to church and learn of the ways of God.
